There was speculation that Brown might also discuss the possibility of regional cooperation among the pro-Western Middle Eastern nations, to counter the threat of instability as a result of the possible establishment of either a nonaligned or pro-Soviet regime in Iran, this however was denied by Ambassador West three days ago.

Islamic legal system becomes law in Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Feb. 10 (R) - Stoning to death for adultery, ampulation of a hand and toot tor theft and whipping for Muslims who drink alcohol became law in Pakistan Saturday.

The measures were announced by the president, Gen. Zia-Ul-Haq, as part of a strict Islamic legal system.

Prohibition of alcohol will be enforced for all except people belonging to the country's Christian minority and resident foreigners.

Gen. Zia, who has ruled by martial law since seizing power 19 months ago, also ordered new forms of taxation which constitute the beginnings of an Islamic economic system.

He unveiled the measures before an invited audience at the former National Assembly Chamber, saying Pakistan had deviated from Islamic principles and turned toward materjalism.

He had already introduced whipping for some offenses and a provision for amputation of the hand. He brought in the latest measures as presidential orders which he said were backed by the supreme COUFT.

The Islamic punishments, which the president said were severe but designed as deterrents, include 80 lashes for drinking, libel and defamation of character.

Stoning will be the punishment for rapists as well as for adulterers.

"Islam is totally misunderstood and the picture of hordes of Muslims marching on Crusaders is wrong," Zia declared. "It is a benign religion. teaching people to be kind and just, and it is progressive."

Jazairi, Aussie aide view outback flying doctor deal

By James Buchan JEDDAH, Feb. 10 — Mimister of Health Dr. Hussein Al-Jazairi Saturday morning met Australia's visiting deputy prime minister, I. Doug-las Anthony for talks on the provision of medical care to outlying areas through the "Flying doctor" service pioneered by Australia.

Anthony, who is also Australian minister of trade and mining, also held talks Saturday with his host in Sauch Arabia, Commerce Minister Dr. Soliman A. Solaim, and Finance and National Econo-

Ar-oia has removed the major British defense and aviation contractor Vickers Ltd., from its blacklist of firms under the Arab Boycott of Israel.

Vickers, which was added to the Arab League Boycott Office blacklist for the supply of defense equipment to Israel in the early 1970s, was delisted this week under a Ministry of Commerce notice published in the official gazette. A total of 85 Vickers affiliates worldwide were also removed.

The ministry also delisted the British electrical engineering firm James Scott and Co. and 18 affiliates. - James my Münister Sheikh Muhammed Aba Al-Khail.

Anthony arrived here Friday for a five-day visit - the first by a senior Australian official and designed to increase the minimal Australian participation in Saudi development and to encourage trade, Officials said. Outback

The creation of a flying doctor service for isolated areas in Saudi Arabia has been under discussion for some time and Australian trade officials admitted here Saturday that they hoped Anthony's visit would give some momentum to the project.

Dr. Jazairi visited Australia in 1977 and an Australian team last October staged a demonstrattion for Saudi offi cials of the Nomad aircraft, is adapted for short take-off and landing for area medical services. The aircraft, YANBU, Feb. 10 (SPA)-There are now nine berths at Yanbu Town's Port after the recent expansion, according to Port Director Abdul Rahman Al-Khattib. The official said that despite an increase in the bulk of merchandise handled at the port, there were no delays or congestions.

Han Government Aircraft Fac tory, was also shown to representatives of Civil Defense and the Ministry of Agriculture and Water.

Dr. Jazairi said Saturday that before further progress could be made, "a comprehensive telecommunications network must be installed between outlying areas and the Ministry of Health" - presumably on the lines of the "pedal wireless" network installed at outback stations in Australia.

Dr. Jazain also said he reviewed with Anthony the particination of Australian companies in public hospital construction and furnishing in Saudi Azabia. "We are happy to see new companies compete for hospital work here" the minister said "provided they offer good services at reasonable costs", a reference to the minister's claim that excessive bids by foreign companies had delayed the award of contracts for five provincial hospitals łast year.

The commerce ministry meeting covered moves toward agreement for the long-term supply of Australian wheat, Dr. Solaim said after the meeting. Australia already has a one million ton-a year supply agreement with Egypt.

They also discussed streamlining Saudi imports of Ausralian meat, both live sheep and refrigerated shipments. The question of slaughter acceptable by Islamic law, which is monitored in Australia by the Australian Federation of Islamic Councils (AFIC) was also raised, Dr. Solaim said.

Dr. Solaim said that they reviewed improved shipping procedures and conditions to ensure regular delivery. A once-monthly shipping service was recently established bet-Australia and Saudi ports, Australian trade officials Dr. Solaim said that Anthomy also expressed the wish of the Australian government to market other agricultural producte in Saudi Arabia.

Sources close to Andreotti said the proposal was seen as possibly the only one which might bring together again the five parties, including the Communists, which had backed Andreotti's Christian Democrat government for 10 months. Andreotti resigned 10 days ago when the Communists and two smaller parties pulled put. He has now been asked to form another government. Andreotti ended three days of talks with political parties Friday. He was to report back to President Sandro Pertini before starting more talks with prospective majority partners

The new formula would give the Christian Democrats half of the cabinet posts and divide the rest between other parties with several ministries going to members of parliament elected as "independent" on the Communist Party ticket without being enrolled as card-carrying party members

Bringing Communists into cabinet posts would disturb many who would see it as a step toward Marxist leadership in this strategically crucial NATO nation.

The Christian Democrats, the backbone of pro-Western rule in Rome since 1945, have found it virtually impossible to govern against the opposition of the Communists since major electoral gains gave the largest Marxist party of the West 34 per cent of the votes in 1976, just four percentage points less than the Christian Democrats

The new proposal seemed to stand few chances of success. It drew a critical response from Chritian Democrats who have pledged to their moderate electorate never to sit in the same government with the Communists.

The Communists said the idea was a far cry from their demand for a share of cabinet posts as the price for renewing parliamentary support to any government,

Also Andreotti sounded skeptical about the possibility of talking the Communists into accepting "vicarious representation" in the government

U.S. did not ask China for Taiwan peace pledge

(R) - The United States has pledge barring the use of force against Taiwan, a senior White House official says.

REAL TERMS

The Vietnam debacle and the undignified exit of the United States from Southeast Asia so hamstrung American foreign policy that for some years the United States has been so unsure of itself as to leave the Soviet Union to fill any vacuum it wants. Even tiny Cuba was emboldened to act like a superpower in Africa.

With American foreign policy in recession, it was only a matter of time before the Soviet Union would unleash its agents in particularly vulnerable countries to rise up and take over, ultimately for the Kremlin.

Taking over has been fast, efficient if bloody, and alarming in its sweep and inevitability.

It is only a matter of time before the communists in Iran infiltrate the opposition: if, that is, Ayatollah Khomeini and the government and army do not reach a quick compromise. The American Defense Secretary's visit to the region takes place amid the unprecedented gloom of those who had counted on unstinted and unwavering American support to thwart any foreign threats to the integrity of the area. The states here are as vulnerable to aggression and subversion as they are crucial to the world economy.

Oman and North Yemen are facing a perennial threat to their stability from South Yemen, almost completely under Soviet tutelage. Somalia and Sudan are already on the defensive against a well-armed Ethiopia which has more arms than it can use purely to defend itself.

The other Gulf states, possibly with the exception of Saudi Arabia and Iraq, are too small to defend themselves against a well-organized subversive movement armed and paid for from the outside.

Harold Brown said here yesterday that his government would not only express friendship and support but show it in real terms: better arms and a declaration of intent that the states in the region would not be left in the lurch if security

But the United States and its friends in the region will always find their hands tied behind their backs by the continued occupation of Arab lands and denial of a Palestinian homeland by the armies of an American protege in the Middle East, Israel. Unless this is eliminated, American effortswill come up against a wall of mistrust and suspicion that would make a full-scale, whole-hearted alliance well-nigh im-

THE UNTRIED MUSCLES

The planned resumption of the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks in Washington later this month offers little promise of a breakthrough that would lead to a comprehensive settlement. The bargaining stances of Egypt and Israel have, if anything, drawn farther apart in period since the Blair House negotiations. Israel, encouraged by the Carter administration's clear reluctance to pressure the Jewish state, has stepped up its op. position to any kind of viable Palestinian self-determination in the occupied territories and has initiated a crackdown on the inhabitants of the West Bank - perhaps a preview of the kind of "autonomy" the Begin government hopes to implement there. Egypt, on the other hand, has had to weigh the potential repercussions of the ongoing Iranian crisis on the region as a whole, and has apparently concluded it would be dangerous to isolate itself further from the Arab countries by acquiescing in a separate peace.

Thus, at the urging of the United States, the two countries will resume ministerial-level talks, but neither side is expecting a realistic Middle East solution to emerge from the negotiations. The talks are likely to be little more than a holding action - a public relations ploy designed to hold out the promise of peace at a time when the Middle East is growing increasingly unsettled due to the strategic realignments currently underway. Since the present Israeli government feels that relinquishing the West Bank will endanger the security of the Jewish state, Begin's negotiators can be expected to stall for time, while the pro-Israeli lobby in the United States works on the Carter administration and urges greater American pressure on President Sadat to conclude a separate peace. But Mr. Sadat has other pressures to contend with as well. He needs to draw closer to his Arab brothers in an effort to assure the stability of the region in the wake of the strategic power vacourse posed by the Iranian crisis. The Egyptian Foreign Ministry demonstrated this concern in its recent reply to comments by Israeli Foreign Minister Dayan. The ministry stressed that Egypt would not turn its back on the Arab nation, and it added a new pan-Arab element to its pronouncements on "linkage" when it called for a peace settlement that would provide repatriation or compensation for the Palestinian refugees of 1948 - a question that has been largely ignored since the Camp David summit.

As we have said many times before, the only way to break the current negotiating deadlock is for the United States to exercise untried muscles and press the Israeli government to make major concessions for peace. The U.S. has the strength to do this - there is no country in the world that relies more on American charity than Israel. And this time, President Carter may be able to win substantial congressional support for a move to pressure the Begin government. Senate majority leader; Robert Byrd hinted at this late last year when he warned that Congress might be inclined to limit aid to Israel if the Jewish state persisted in establishing illegal settlements in the occupied territories. The Carter administration has set the stage for a possible pressure play against Israel with the release of the State Department human rights report criticizing Israeli treatment of Palestinian detainees and prisoners. Hopefully the president will have the courage to follow through on this promising beginning, before it becomes necessary to abandon the peace process altogether.

Egypt hopes for a summit

By Thomas W. Lippman CALRO —

Egypt believes that a new summit conference with the United States and Israel is the only way to end the stalemate David." in Middle East peace negotiations and wants President Jimmy Carter to convene such a meeting soon, informed Egyptian sources have said.

The turmoil in Iran makes a regional peace settlement between Israel and its Arab neighbors all the more urgent, the Egyptians argue, and since there is no prospect of achieving such an accord by any other means, a summit will be

A U.S. State Department spokesman said recently that the United States only would call a summit if both Israel and Egypt were prepared to demonstrate flexibility. Observers here believe the desire to do just that motivated President Anwar Sadat to tell newsmen last week that Egypt had agreed to sell oil from its Sinai fields to Israel at market pri-

Sadat and the top officials of his government have refrained from saying publicly that they want a new summit along the lines of the Camp David meeting last summer. They have hinted at it in broad terms and virtually have ruled out any other format for pursuing the negotiations.

In an interview published here last week, the acting Foreign Minister, Dr. Boutros Ghali, rejected a proposal by Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan for an Egyptian Israeli meeting without American participation. He said he believed the events in Iran and other world developments would strengthen and increase the will of the United States to achieve peace in the Middle

"That's why a summit is necessary," one high ranking Egyptian said, "We can't have another Blair House."

Atherton sought to resolve the differences between Egypt and Israel over the wording of two articles of the draft worked out at the Blair House talks. The Egyptians say they expected hille from the Atherton mission because that was the wrong approach, and they got what they expected.

What the Egyptians say they ward to do now is stop picking at details and haggling over language and try for a breakthrough in principle on the real issue, the future of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. Once that is achieved, they argue, the details will he easy, but the only format in which it can be done is a summit conference in which the United 5totes would parlicipale.

Elections in Ghana

By John Madeley ACCRA, Ghana

William Ofori-Atta is running for president of Ghana as leader of the United National Convention, which last week held its inaugural meeting. Political parties have been banned in Ghana since the army took over in 1972.

Ghana, like Nigeria, is due to return to civilian rule this year, Elections for a President and members of the Assembly take place in May and June and fervor among the politically-conscious Ghanaians is already high.
The United National Convention is a new party but "Willy Willie" is an old hand with an impeccable background. Imprisoned five times for political neasons — he was released from his fifth spell only last August - Ofori-Atta was one of Ghana's "big ax" who wrested judependence from Britain in the 1950s. He now aspires to lead his country out of its worst economic crisis since the days of independence. In his speech to his party's inaugurat his party's inaugural meeting he said that the UNC will reconcile the different interests m society, promote the happiness and welfare of all Ghanaisons and make life enjoyable in the nural areas. All of which is just what the crowd had come to hear.

But he got his biggest cheer when he said that, if elected, the UNC will deny the military the right to intenfere in the political affairs of Ghana ever

Blame for the country's inflation - 60 per cent in six years — its collapsing currency, empty shops and shortages of everything, is fixed firmy on the army. Ofori-Atta's plan is to come to an agreement with every sector of society that a total work stoppage wiff occur should the army try to take over The UNC is a broad-based coalition that just might be capable of making that kind of agreement. Right, left and center politicians make up its ranks.

renegade Lebanese commander Saad Haddad who cooperates with Israel in the south intends to declare the independence of the region if the Lebanese government carnied out a threat to cut off the paychecks of his troops because of their insubordination. Commenting on this development "Okaz" editorial said the division of Lebanon has always been an Israeli objective which would allow it to continue to expand and grab more territory in the Arab world. Thus Israel, which lurks behind the plan to divide Lebanon, stands to consolidate its control of the south including the Litani river which it has always coveted, prevent the U.N. forces from advancing into the south and thus render the UN resolution 444 use-

Why hanker after a new tri partite summit conference on the proposed peace treaty between Egypt and Israel, "Al-Nadwa" asked Some observers believe that the U.S. government still has a few arrows in its quiver while the Israelis have high hopes that Egypt would be persuaded to make further concessions, even more than those given during the Camp David meeting. Those seeking a peace treaty with Israel are aware that their concept of peace is extremely at variance with that of the Israciis who want peace and land including Jerusalem at once

'Iranian disconnection' takes toll on uncertain Wall Street

- The political upheaval in Iran - already being called "the Iranian disconnection." has become a persistent problem for the stock market.

Six weeks after the last shipment of oil left that unsettled country - which ordinately accounts for about 10 per cent of the world's oil supplies - the financial markets are still struggling to adjust. As the markets closed Fri-

Volume on the big board averaged 25.24 million shares a day, against 26.94 million the week before.

Analysis have noted several important areas of concern for investors in the Iranian situation. The most basic is its potential effect on oil supplies for the industrialized countries. Beyond that, questions have been raised about Iran's future role as a consumer of Western goods and equipment, and about loans made in the country by Wes-

(July 23 to Ang. 22) News Difficulties with a close one could lead to self-doubt. You can't seem to understand why some people like you and others do not.

(Ang. 23 to Sept. 22)

only person who understands your need for some moments by yourself. Expect interruptions by others. (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

You may need the help of a wise friend to keep personal matters from become entangled right now. SCORPIO

(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A conflict between family members may have you caught in the middle. Better not to take sides. Let them fight it out.

(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Philosophic or moral concepts may be hard to put into words today, but you may have to if you want others to understand your viewpoint. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Financial questions dominate this day of rest from dawn to sunset. Chances are that all concerned will need more time to resolve these matters.

(Jank 28 to Feb. 18) You'll have to bend a hit if you want partnership affairs to progress smoothly. Spend some time with friends who'll serve as a buffer zone.

(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) Yes, it is a good time to attend to matters of health now, but try not to bore others with the details.

Crop damage likely after dry weather in S. Hemisphere

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP) — Dry weather is pla-guing much of the southern bemisphere with crop damage likely in South America and South Africa, the U.S. Natio-nal Weather Service reports. Lack of rain is threatening the soybean crop in Brazil, the world's second largest exporter of the beans.

The Weather Service's Environmental Data and information Service said that gemerous rains that fell over the soybean areas last autumn suddenly halted with the arrival of the New Year. "Day after day of rainless skies and temperatures in the 90s have evaporated earlier moisture and stunted the grow-th of the crops," the laformation Service said-Dry conditions also prevail in neighboring Paraguay and Uruguay and in parts of nor-them Argentina. But moisture has been generally adequate in areas where Argentina's important corn crop is cultivated.

Across the Atlantic in South Africa, recent rains apparently have helped revive some crops damaged by the earlier drought. Much more rain is needed to erase the harm caused by dry weather that affected some areas in November and December. Abnormal hear and dryness have also damaged the gnowth of crops and pastures in parts of Australia, but the wheat crop there has already
